WILLKIE TELLS WORKERS MORE JOBS NEEDED

Declares Minimum Standards Not Enough; Wallace Raps High Finance.

By The Associated Press

Wendell L. Willkie started on the homeward leg of his wide campaign swing through the west today, after charging that the Roosevelt administration "has let labor down."

Pledging himself to continue "minimum standards" for labor, the Republican presidential nominee told a rally at Seattle last night that labor's fundamental need was "more jobs, more work, more growth, more expansion."

"These minimum safeguards are not enough," Willkie said. "They cannot really protect you . . . the only thing that can basically safeguard your rights and opportunities" is new employment and more jobs.

Speaks in Ball Park

Speaking at the Seattle baseball park to a crowd which included many working people—in a city of strong labor unionism—Willkie said the wage-hour and the national labor relations laws had his support.

"Believe me, if I am elected president of the United States I shall protect your side of the industrial team. But . . . the other side of the industrial team, the employer, must be given a chance.

"We can lick the employer if we want to. We can beat him down, we can frighten him, we can even eliminate him. But if we do that—and that is what the New Deal is doing—you won't have any jobs. The only employer left under those circumstances would be the state."

Willkie said he was undertaking his presidential campaign because "I want every man and woman in this country to find a job if he or she wants one.

"I want that just as much as you do because I have given my pledge to labor that I know what makes jobs and I will get them for you."

Discussing New Deal labor legislation, Willkie said he stood for all of labor's "social gains," which he described as "minimum standards below which society dare not fall."

"Now if the New Deal wants to claim credit for those minimum safeguards," he continued, "I say let it have just as much as it deserves. I don't care how much credit the New Deal claims because I know, and the record shows, that the New Deal has let labor down."

Cheered In Portland

Earlier, at Portland, Ore., Willkie promised cheering Portland audiences today "positive things—more jobs," and popular determination of power distribution methods from Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams.

Discussing Bonneville and Grand Coulee, the Republican presidential nominee told a crowd that filled the Civic Auditorium and a crowd listening from the streets that "I have more conception of the value of that $270,000,000 investment than all the New Deal gang put together."

"I have some conception of what $270,000,000 means in concentrated sweat and labor of men. I shall protect the interest of the American people."

WILLKIE TO SPEAK IN OHIO CITIES OCT. 2

Principal Address of Day To Be at Cleveland.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24—Wendell L. Willkie will bring his campaign to Ohio next week with two major addresses and two train platform appearances, G. O. P. National Committeeman David S. Ingalls announced today.

The Republican presidential nominee will speak in Toledo at noon, Oct. 2, his appearance sponsored by the Lucas county Republican organization. During the afternoon his train will halt for 25 minutes at both Sandusky and Elyria for back platform talks, and he will make his principal address of the day at 8 p. m. in Cleveland's public auditorium.

The evening program, Ingalls said, also will include talks by Gov. Bricker, Sen. Robert A. Taft, and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland. All will accompany Willkie on the train from Toledo.

Later in October, the candidate may visit southern and central Ohio, visiting principal cities and making major speeches at Cincinnati and Columbus, Ingalls reported.

BAR 3 PARTIES FROM BALLOT

Groups Fail To Qualify for Participation in Ohio November Election.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24—Communist, Socialist and Socialist-Labor parties failed today to qualify for the Nov. 5 election in Ohio and Secretary of State George M. Neffner charged they "wantonly abused" provisions for nominating slates of candidates.

The parties lacked sufficient signatures on qualifying petitions after names were checked by county election boards which, Neffner said, found fraudulent signatures.

Many signatures were forged and yet the circulators made affidavits that the signatures were placed on the petition in their presence and were the signatures of the persons whom they purported to be," Neffner said in a statement.

"Endeavors will be made to apprehend and prosecute those guilty of such violations."

The Communists came closest to qualifying, having 20,896 of the necessary 24,000 signatures. The Communists had submitted petitions bearing more than 34,000 names.

Hundreds of persons had complained to Secretary of State George Neffner and county election boards, however, that they had been duped into signing Communist petitions. Their names were deleted when the petitions were checked.

Jury Investigates

A Franklin county grand jury now is investigating complaints of irregularities in connection with the petitions' circulation.

Earl Browder of New York and Arnold S. Johnson of Cleveland headed the Communist ticket, which was denounced by Gov. Bricker.

The Socialist party was headed by Norman Thomas of New York and Paul Jones of Yellow Springs. It had 16,336 valid signatures and the Socialist-Labor group, headed by John W. Aiken of Chelsea, Mass., and William Woodhouse of Columbus, had 13,120.

Four candidates for judgeships and one for secretary of state failed to qualify.

Judge Day Qualifies

The judgeship candidates were Alfred C. Jones (R), Garfield Heights, Thomas J. Jones (R) Martins Ferry, and Frank E. Wilkie (R), Lakewood, short-term candidates, and Kent H. Meyers (D), Cleveland Heights, candidate for the six-year term beginning Jan. 1, 1941.

Judge Arthur H. Day, Independent-Republican of Cleveland, qualified as a candidate for a regular term beginning Jan. 2. He will be opposed by Gilbert Bettman (R) of Cincinnati and Judge MacBridge (D) of Columbus.

COUNCIL HOLDS OFF ACTION ON MORE METERS

Division of Opinion Voiced After Committee Recommends Addition.

City council last night delayed starting consideration of legislation authorizing installation of more parking meters in the business district, after considerable difference of opinion developed.

The councilmen were at odds on installation of two-hour meters in certain sections, on putting different type meters on the same streets and on putting in any more meters at all just now.

As a result of the discussion, held in the office of the mayor preceding the regular council meeting, Mayor Snare announced no action would be taken until the differences were ironed out.

The matter of addition of more meters was brought up two weeks ago by the mayor, who reported merchants in non-meter zones had requested the devices.

Committee Reports

The discussion opened with a report of the council police committee which recommended installation of one-hour meters on Center street from State street to the first alley east of State; on Center street from Prospect street to Oak on the north side and to Union on the south side; on Main from Church street south to the first alley. The group also recommended two-hour meters on Center street from Union to Orchard on the south side and on Prospect street from Mill to Church.

These recommendations were made informally however, and may be revised in the light of further study.

Ordinance Prepared

An ordinance had been drawn up which coincided fairly well with the committee report, but no action was taken on it.

City Solicitor Kenneth E. Robinson said he didn't like the idea of having both one-hour and two-hour meters on Center street, contending it would make enforcement difficult.

"It would give people a lot more excuses that they haven't thought of now," he said.

Councilman D. R. Biggert said he "couldn't go for" meters on Prospect street.

Councilman Harry Wilhelm of the police committee reported that apparently the women of Marion want a two-hour zone, since many are unable to do their shopping in one hour.

Mr. Biggert reported a statement from a Marion woman on the matter of Saturday night parking, which is now limited to one hour until 9 o'clock. He said his informant suggested the one-hour limit be extended to 10 o'clock to prevent persons from parking at 8 o'clock, putting in a nickel and staying parked through the busy shopping period as long as they wish.

Would Continue Trial

Getting back to the meters, Councilman Welcome P. Cass Jr. recalled that when the meters were first installed they were put in for a year's trial, despite considerable opposition.

He said that although much of this opposition has now changed, council should not be too hasty in admitting the meters are a success and putting in more of them. He suggested waiting till the first of the year, which would give the present meters a six-month trial.

Mayor Snare said he is agreeable to deferring additional meters if council sees fit to delay.

Councilman Harry Cahill commented that motorists should have some free place to park.

This brought up scattered remarks, among which was the revelation that sometime ago a Marion used car dealer used the city parking lot to store his cars, which apparently he sold from the lot. Solicitor Robinson said police had halted the practice, but councilman Cass wondered why the dealer hadn't been jailed. Mr. Robinson said there isn't any law against parking as long as you want to in the lot or against selling your car from the lot.

Mr. Robinson also recalled that a Galion car owner had parked an automobile continuously back of Harding High school for two months, until police hauled it to a garage.

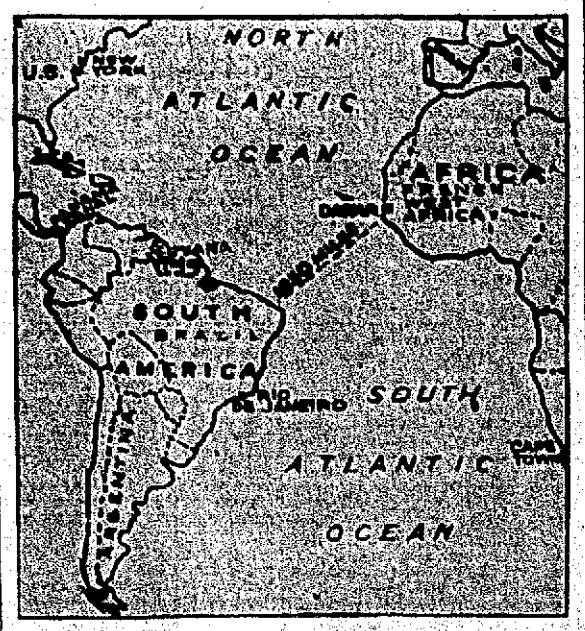
BRITISH SHELL FRENCH PORT



British warships were reported to have opened heavy fire on the French West African port of Dakar (see map) after the colony authorities refused to surrender. Charles De Gaulle, leader of Frenchmen fighting with Great Britain, was aboard the flagship of the British warships participating in the attack.

It has been the opinion of many military experts that Dakar is the most strategic "jump off" point for Fascist and Nazi forces if they attempt an invasion of France's and Great Britain's South American possessions. As the map shows, the distance is but 1,050 miles. (International News map)

Wyandot Co. Man Killed in Auto and Truck Crash

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Sept. 24—Theodore Taft Byrd, 35, Wyandot county farmer, was killed instantly early today when his passenger car and a truck collided almost head-on. The accident occurred at 1:40 a. m. on U. S. route 30-N, six miles west of here.

The victim, father of eight children, apparently was enroute to his Richland township farm home after visiting in Upper Sandusky. He suffered a crushed skull, mangled left arm and numerous lacerations. He was thrown partially out of the car and was dead when extricted from the wreckage.

Truck Overturned

He was driving west and his car collided with an oncoming truck operated by Adrian B. Waldron of Convoy, O., according to the report of Deputy Sheriff John Long. The truck driver told authorities he saw the passenger car veer to his side of the highway and drove onto the berm in an effort to avoid the accident.

The truck was on the berm at the time of the impact and it overturned on the highway, Deputy Long reported. Byrd's automobile remained upright on the road and traveled about 50 feet. The wreckage blocked traffic for 30 minutes.

Coroner Called

The body was removed to the Bringman & Co. funeral home in Upper Sandusky. It was viewed by Dr. J. A. Propst, Wyandot county coroner. He returned a verdict of accidental death.

Byrd was born in Putnam county, W. Va., April 24, 1909, the son of George B. and Nettie Neumyer Byrd. He had resided in Wyandot county for the last six years. His widow, Aimee Gibson Byrd, also a native of West Virginia, his father, who lives near Huntington, W. Va., five sons, three daughters, all at home, and five brothers and two sisters, survive.

PLANES STRIKE IN RETALIATION FOR DAKAR RAID

Vichy Reports British Beaten in African Battle; Nazis Still Blast London.

By The Associated Press

French warplanes bombarded Gibraltar vigorously for nearly three hours today, sending up clouds of black smoke and shaking the British fortress with a series of explosions, reports from La Linea, Spain, stated today.

The attack ceased abruptly shortly after 3:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. Marion time).

Thirty minutes later the British fleet sailed out of the harbor, apparently heading for the Atlantic.

Watchers here saw at least 30 planes taking part in the attack, apparently a reprisal for British-supported operations of "Free Frenchmen" against Dakar. Anti-aircraft replied heavily.

(Unconfirmed reports received in Lisbon said several of the attacking planes were shot down.)

Late this afternoon reports from Tangier, internationalized zone, Morocco, said heavy cannonading could be heard from an undetermined source. The Tangier reports said British naval forces appeared to be preparing to strike back at France's Moroccan ports in answer to the Gibraltar bombardment.

After an estimated total of 55 bombs had been dropped, waves of raiders continued to roar through a black pall of smoke almost covering the rock.

From vantage points in Spain it appeared as though an arsenal was damaged heavily. Heavy explosions were heard in rapid succession.

Observers of La Linea, Spain, on the border adjoining Gibraltar, reported that an estimated 30 French warplanes attacked the rock bastion at 10-minute intervals for an an hour and a half late today.

Columns of black were seen rising from Gibraltar, apparently from fires set by bomb-hits on stores of gasoline.

Coincidently, French Naval Minister Admiral Jean Darlan announced that France has struck out with reprisals for the British siege of Dakar, saying:

"The land, sea and air forces of Africa have already repulsed the landing attempts (at Dakar), inflicted losses of the aggressor warships and launched reprisals."

The reprisals apparently referred to the bombing of Gibraltar.

After an earlier London report that warships sent to Dakar had been withdrawn, a Reuters (British news agency) dispatch said "operations at Dakar are now in progress."

Vichy Reports Raid

Dispatches from Vichy, the headquarters of Premier Marshal Philippe Petain's government, reported the raid on Gibraltar and also told of the defeat of British landing parties which sought to storm Dakar.

The land attacks, starting at 1 a. m., in a thick mist, followed a violent naval barrage during which shells from British warships rained for eight hours into the strategic African port with a normal population of 24,000.

A French submarine was reported hit by a British shell, and a British cruiser by a French shore battery.

French dead were listed at "more than 100." About 6,000 French colonial troops were defending the port, the westernmost point on the African continent and control base for the ocean route between Europe and Brazil.

One British landing party of 200 men was reported driven back to their ships and a hail of machine-gun fire.

These reports, emanating from Vichy, were countered by the British ministry of information in London, which declared:

"There is no truth in reports that any British landing at or near Dakar has been attempted."

Vichy sources said the French were replying to the British "cannon shot for cannon shot," and said all landing attempts would meet fierce resistance.

Try To Encircle City

It was indicated the British operations were aimed at trying to surround the city by land and cut it off from the interior. This move was viewed here as a prelude to an attempt to wrest the entire colony from the Petain regime.

The heavy fog which frequently shrouds the coast at this time of year was said to be hampering movements of British troopships.

(Aboard the transports was a mixed force of British and French troops led by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, [illegible] condemned to death as [illegible] the Vichy government [illegible] continuing [illegible] war [illegible] Great Britain.)

FINISH FIGHT VOWED BY AXIS

Nazis and Italy To Carry on In Spite of New Allies for Britain.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Berlin Associated Press Bureau Chief.

BERLIN, Sept. 24—The axis powers will fight Britain to the bitter end without the slightest compromise, regardless of who may yet rally to her support, authorized German sources said today after the return of Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop from his Rome conferences with Premier Mussolini.

There will be no compromise, these quarters added.

Without going into the details of the Rome parley, they characterized the conferences as having included "all the questions necessary for the defeat of Britain."

Not only will there be no compromise, they said, but "the fight against England will be continued on all fronts."

Using a figure of speech taken from duelling, these sources elaborated, saying, "The Rome conversations dealt not only with thrust and parry by principals, but also with all possible activity by actual and potential seconds."

Foreign correspondents understood this to mean chiefly the United States, but authorized sources declined to specify any country.

The axis powers, it was said authoritatively, are erecting a new order that it is the antithesis of the British conception of world domination.

"All European peoples possessing the virility to live are to become equal members in the European community," these sources said.

"The battle for this genial conception is decided. The new Europe already is in the process of formation. England alone is the enemy of all young, strong, powerful nations.

"To what extent Britain's seconds who on the whole represent not peoples, but groups with ties to international capitalism, understand this conception is theoretically interesting, but has no political importance whatsoever."

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Sept. 25

Generally fortunate and auspicious conditions should prevail on this day, judging by the ruling lunar influences. Things should advance pleasantly and smoothly in accustomed grooves, with much accomplished and friendly support won from those in power and prestige. The social aspect of business may be accented with such contact, but be careful as to expenditures and extravagances. Elders also are helpful. There should be lively social, domestic and affectional conditions, but in the latter there is need for discretion.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a rather progressive, prosperous, fortunate and happy year, with many things advancing the ambitions and giving stability to future prospects. Elders and those in power assist in this with friendly cooperation. These should be cultivated, but in social affiliations shun extravagances and unjustified outlay of funds. Purely private relations are also lively and very pleasant, but in intimate affairs be circumspect.

A child born on this day may have much stability and talent to back up its ambitions and aspirations, although it will be easy going and fond of the good things of life. It should have a warm, generous and compassionate nature.

Leave Nickel for Parking Meter But Gets Ticket.

The motorist got a ticket.

LEGIONNAIRES MARCH IN BOSTON TODAY

Thousands of Veterans Take Part In Parade.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Sept. 24—The American Legion, with bands blaring and banners waving, paraded today before hundreds of thousands of spectators lining a route blazed by landmarks of the nation's history.

Booming salvos from an artillery battery over historic Boston common set the marchers off on a two-and-a-quarter mile trek. National preparedness problems and a prospective slam-bang fight for the choice of a national commander were laid aside for the day as Legionnaires from all parts of the nation tramped in serried thousands through Boston streets.

A cool breeze swept the city, making ideal weather for the marchers.

Absent from the ranks of the Akron, Ohio, post was Legionnaire Wendell Willkie Republican nominee for president, who sent his outfit a telegram of regret that he would be unable to march. Willkie voiced confidence that the national convention would chart a course 'to build a new faith in America and American institutions'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept 24—Sioux City, Ia., last night again won the American Legion's national senior band contest with a 94.65 rating. Columbus, O., was second with 90.8, and Canton, O., third, with 90.2. Massillon placed eighth in the senior drum and bugle corps competition.

WILLKIE

lining the streets and by two brief talks to suburban groups, Willkie drew a prolonged ovation as he strode out on the stage before a gigantic American flag backdrop.

At Indianapolis, Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential choice, asserted that the New Deal had "rescued the capitalist system of production, which had almost been killed by the effects of financial management before 1933."

Attacks High Finance

The Wallace speech contained attacks on 'high finance" and 'financial monstrosities known as holding companies"

He declared that the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, which Willkie headed before resigning to accept the Republican nomination, had brought "pressure on newspapers and magazines, through buying or refusing to buy advertising space," * * * "to kill off the Chattanooga News for the crime of supporting the TVA"

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), one of Willkie's rivals for the presidential nomination urged Willkie's election in a New York speech in which he assailed some major New Deal laws and their administration. He called for changes in the Wagner act and the wage-hour law.

Democratic headquarters, meanwhile, announced in New York yesterday the resignation of L. W. (Chip) Robert Jr., as secretary of the party's national committee. Robert resigned because he said that in a time like the present he could not serve simultaneously the best interests of the party and his own firm.

Robert heads a firm of architects and engineers in Atlanta. He was criticized recently in congress for holding a party office when his firm was receiving government defense work.

Axis Division of British Colonies May Be Premature

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

This is being written as the British royal air force is reported as having flung back from London a fierce Nazi aerial attack which was a reprisal for the longest raid of the war over Berlin—a bombardment that kept the German capital under alarm for almost four hours early today and reportedly cost a number of civilian lives.

That is to say, John Bull was continuing to give demonstrations of his growing strength and initiative in both defense and offense.

With that as preface it may be said the suggestion that the latest Nazi-Fascist conference in Rome was primarily for division of still unconquered African territory has been over-emphasized by the Axis brotherhood as to compel the suspicion it is camouflage for an embarrassment calling for fresh strategy against the aforesaid J. Bull.

Rolling The Dice

Undoubtedly Messrs. Mussolini and Hitler have indeed been rolling the dice for Britain's possessions, they would be lacking in leadership if they didn't look ahead. However, it requires no psychic powers to see that the totalitarian chieftains have on their hands a military problem that is causing them grave worry.

In short, it finally has become evident that the British empire can't be cracked open by carrying it up into the air and then dropping it on a rock, after the manner of a bird with a clam.

The downfall of England, which both Hitler and Mussolini (and a lot of others) felt absolutely sure of only a short time ago, is now actually further away than it was in June when France collapsed. I dare say Herr Hitler would have staked his life then that Britain was finished.

Instead of being knocked out, J. Bull has come through so strong that the definitely is entitled to claim that he may win the war.

Shift of Scenes

The indications are that Hitler is calling for more action in the Mediterranean and the two of them are in process of devising ways and means of getting it. That to my mind requires very considerable aid for Italy.

The trouble with the Axis powers is that neither of them is prepared for a long war, and Italy is far less well equipped than Germany. It is true that the Nazis have the mightiest military machine ever created, and that the Fascists also are relatively strong.

But no matter how powerful the fighting services of a nation, it can't make war without resources not only to support those services but take care of its population. Neither Germany nor Italy had accumulated all the vital resources when war began.

At Washington, the Railway Labor Executive association representing 20 of the 21 railroad brotherhoods, announced its indorsement of John McSweeney, Democratic nominee for U. S. senator from Ohio.

BRITISH BOMBS SINK FOUR GERMAN SHIPS

Armed Vessels Go Down After Attack in Channel.

By The Associated Press

FOLKESTONE, ENGLAND, Sept. 24—British Blenheim bombers attacked four armed German ships off the French coast near Boulogne this afternoon and when the smoke cleared away the ships had disappeared and were believed destroyed.

After the first attack only one of the four ships remained at the spot where they were sighted.

Then came another blast and a few minutes later the fourth ship was gone.

An Associated Press observer saw the raid from the English side of the channel.

Geysers of spray as high as the coastal cliffs shrouded the Nazi ships as five RAF Blenheim bombers dropped their first salvo of explosives.

CONGRESS ABANDONS HOPE OF ADJOURNMENT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—Congressional hopes for adjournment this week-end were abandoned today as a joint conference committee buckled down to what members called the 'real work" of adjusting knotty senate and house differences in the excess profits tax bill.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, told reporters that he saw little possibility that congress would dispose of this intricate tax legislation, as well as the $1,500,000,000 defense appropriation bill in time to quit this week-end.

Members of the tax bill conference committee said they had deferred until today action on any of the major points of controversy between the two houses.

The house, meanwhile, gave its approval yesterday to a $267,000,000 deficiency appropriency bill, carrying funds for the training of 700,000 defense workers as well as money to start construction on a countrywide program for the development of 4,000 civil and military airports. The bill now goes to the senate.

ship leader of all free Frenchmen."

Government advices said the British squadron consisted of two battleships, four cruisers, several destroyers and six transports.

The bombardment began at 2:15 p. m. yesterday after Pierre Boisson, governor general of French West Africa had refused General de Gaulle's order to surrender.

General de Gaulle's London headquarters asserted that the only action took place when de Gaulle sent a group of emissaries ashore under a white flag of truce. Several members of the party were killed, it was said, when the defenders of a Dakar opened fire. The rest then withdrew.

Reports from Dakar said the British forces were attempting to surround the capital city and cut it off from the interior.

In the battle of Britain a wave of 150 German warplanes ran into a squall of anti-aircraft shrapnel and RAF fighting planes when they attempted to bomb London in a swift counter-attack for a British pre-dawn raid on Berlin lasting three hours and 47 minutes—the longest attack of the war on the German capital.

RAF pursuit planes reportedly scattered the Nazi raiders over London but suddenly increased aerial activity was noted throughout England.

Soon after the first wave passed two other formations of 17 each, escorted by about 100 battle planes, were reported on the way up the Thames.

The British air ministry said 'extensive damage' was done in last night's raid on Berlin, which was described as on much larger scale than any yet carried out'

The ministry said objectives bombed were the Ruensdorf railway station several freight yards, including that at Grunewald in southwest Berlin, the electric power station in Wilmersdorf, in south Berlin, factories in the western suburbs of Charlottenburg and Spandau including the Brandenburg motor works and gas plants at Danitzieger, Strasse and Neukoln in southeast Berlin.

Almost continuous attacks also were carried out by relays of bombers against the channel ports in German hands.

The British Press association, commenting on the morning attacks on London, said the Germans "twice turned tail for home before a merciless barrage of AA fire and the relentless pursuit of British fighters."

In the first raid the press association said 'a number of Nazi machines were seen in difficulties and one was reported to have crashed into the sea at Whitstable."

Some Believed Lost

A strong force of Hurricanes engaged a second wave of raiders "scurrying for home in a rearguard action, the press association added and a "large splash near Calais is thought to indicate that at least one Nazi plane failed to get home."

The narrow strait of Dover was calm enough for row boats to cross.

Associated Press correspondents along the coast reported seeing German and British planes throughout the night and in the early daylight hours in ceaseless patrols over the invasion 'danger zone."

In London the air ministry reported 'extensive damage' in the RAF's raid on Berlin which the ministry described as an 'a much larger scale than any yet carried out."

Eleven Germans were reported killed in the RAF attack on Berlin, and flames visible from the heart of the capital glowed against the dawn sky over the Moabit section of north Berlin—a district of factories and workers' homes. The German government asserted there was 'no military damage."

Hitler's high command said that Nazi warplanes bombed England's noted university town of Cambridge in retaliation for British bombing of Germany's ancient university town of Heidelberg.

A London air ministry communique said German "invasion bases on the Nazi held channel coast were again 'attacked vigorously during the night. It acknowledged three RAF planes failed to return.

Invasion Weather Good

For the second straight day, 'invasion' weather over the channel was nearly perfect.

Tonight the channel will be dark from 8 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. when the moon rises.

Simultaneously an ominous note developed in United States-Japanese relations when the Japanese newspaper Kokumin often a Japanese army mouthpiece asserted that Japan will resist with all her means any United States attempt to make Singapore a base for naval forces in the Pacific.

Unofficial quarters in Washington had previously suggested that the United States—to express disapproval of Japan's invasion of French Indo-China—might send part of the U. S. Fleet now based at Hawaii to the Far East possibly basing them at the British crown colony of Singapore.

"DOODLEBUG" CRASH BLAMED ON SIGNALS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24—A system of automatic signaling and remote switch control would have prevented the July 31 crash of the Pennsylvania railroad's 'doodlebug' into a freight train with a loss of 43 lives, Chairman George C. McConnaughey of the state utilities commission believes.

The commission ordered the railroad to give reason by Oct. 14 why such a system should not be installed on its line between Akron and Hudson, scene of the tragic wreck.

McConnaughey said the "Doodlebug,' a gasoline powered passenger car, would have been sidetracked automatically before reaching the point of the collision had automatic signals been employed.

The commission chairman declared that he did not intend to infer that the railroad was negligent, but wanted it to prove that its system of operation on the 14-mile is safe.

Commission inspectors earlier reported the crash due to "failure of manpower."

Conductor Harry Schafer, one of three railroad employes who escaped the coach alive said that the doodlebug passed the siding where it had been ordered to stop. Engineer J. F. Murtaugh said his mind was a 'blank' before the collision.

AUTHORITIES SILENT IN KIDNAPING CASE

FBI Also Keeps Mum on Mattson Angle.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24—Inquiry into baby Marc de Tristan's kidnaping was pursued in secret today by the federal bureau of investigation, and whether Werner Jakob Muhlenbroich, the accused abductor, was linked to the Tacoma kidnap-slaying of Charles Mattson went undisclosed.

The whereabouts of the 40-year-old German alien and Willard Mattson, the slain boy's brother, who flew here to confront Muhlenbroich, were not known.

Presumably young Mattson, who saw his brother kidnaped nearly four years ago, had viewed the prisoner, but FBI agents delayed making any announcement of the result.

Nat Piper, local FBI headsmen last night he had no announcement to make, nor would he say when he might have.

William Mattson, now a University of Washington student, was whisked away from the San Francisco airport by federal agents shortly after his arrival.

Speculation arose that Muhlenbroich might be held in Alcatraz federal prison on an island in San Francisco bay.

Baby Marc, meanwhile returned to a normal mode of life at the home of his parents, the Count and Countess Marc de Tristan, Hillsborough exclusive residential area 20 miles south of here. The 2½-year-old boy, kidnaped Friday was restored to his parents Sunday night without payment of the $100,000 demanded for his release.

Anchored to failure —by poor vision
The class 'dullard' has often proved to be the most intelligent child in the class . when his defective vision was discovered and corrected.
The stubborn, unsocial child often turned out to be an active, lik able leader of his classmates when his defective vision was discovered and corrected.
Poor vision is an unsuspected handicap that is anchoring many fine children, today, to failure. The only way of discovering its presence is an eyesight examination.

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeane Bowman

CHAPTER 24
Confidential Conversation

CONSTANCE heard herself pleading, "The cow wasn't there last night, I know, Lamson, my very own man, watches this one."

Dr. Wing shook his head. "You know the law," he said.

Constance sank down on the edge of a trough. She knew. Slaughter of all diseased cattle. Loss of the herd. A check on the outflow of milk from El Cabrillo Dairies until a test had been run on the entire place...and even then the stigma.

"Doctor Wing, there's a good chance they didn't contact it in this very short time, isn't there?" Michael Mahoney had never bargained more eagerly. "Give them a chance. Let me have the whole herd driven to the inner valley. We can isolate them for the period of quarantine. It isn't just the money and the reputation of the ranch, it's—" She looked at the nearest cow regarding her with patient eyes. "Oh, I like the fool things," she explained. "I just can't have them slaughtered for nothing."

Doctor Wing thought for a few moments. "You've been having a lot of subversive activity lately, haven't you, Miss Cabrillo? I came heer on a tip telephoned the office. I'd like to find out who's doing this. Call your man and we'll see about it."

Lamson came forward. "See anything unusual about that herd?" Doctor Wing asked him.

Lamson looked them over, then turned to Constance. "H'I say," he burst out, "'ow did she get in 'ere?" And he cut the stranger from the herd.

Wing was satisfied. "Remember, Miss Cabrillo, this quarantine means dry cows. Is it going to be worth the feed?"

"Yes!"

"All right, I'll stay with the drive. But first let me telephone for some men. They might as well do the disinfecting you'll need at the old cattle barns."

Pedersen took Wing to the telephone, then came back to Constance "I won't be able to learn anything from anyone," he said with the slow anger of his race "There's something queer about this place. It seems to close in against strangers To keep on, means eternal vigilance, and—"

Constance knew what he meant. Pedersen was beginning to wonder if it was worth it. So was she, with the best-producing herd on the place in quarantine.

Slowly she went back to the ranch house, stepped into the patio and stopped short Juliano was dressing a gash on Don's cheek Nadine was crying softly and Donna was hysterical. "That damned horse of yours," shouted Don.

Constance wheeled and ran to the stable. A high, shrill whinny greeted her. And then the stable boy ducked out of the stall, tears streaming down his face.

"He's bad hurt," he sobbed, "your brother was mad at him ...see...this leg here."

Constance saw the leg and other marks—"Get Doctor Wing, he'll be at Barn Three. Tell him to hurry"

She soothed the horse, ran a caressing hand down his neck and along the flanks where muscles twitched, and when he quieted she leaned her head against him. Don had tried to break Pancho...He had broken her. When her enemies struck at her through defenseless animals, she was whipped.

The Key Turns

"Nasty gash on his leg here, and some other nasty things," Doctor Wing pronounced after his examination. "Whoever did this ought to be horse whipped."

Constance nodded But who would do the whipping? Neither Don nor Donna had ever been corrected for any wrong they had done.

Doctor Wing looked at her quizzically, cleared his throat and grumbled, "You won't be much help here now. I need men, so put Pancho in a trailer and take him to my place Tell the wife to give him that box stall on the acre lot. He needs the quiet he'll have there. Stay with him until he feeds."

Constance sent the boy for her car keys while she blanketed Pancho, led him to the trailer, and tacked on the canvas cover. Only his amber eyes were visible They looked at her trustingly

She drove out of El Camino Real slowly. She didn't want to see the family until she could control her anger Then they would talk. She would bargain with them. How? What had she left to offer?

Marriage to John Raskthorne if he would agree they all go east. She could leave the ranch with Pedersen.

She had a little money left over, she could offer it to the family if they would leave. She'd find work some place; some place where she could board Pancho nearby.

Pedro had said Michael Mahoney wouldn't give up until he'd been thrown in the Bastile and the lock had been turned on him, and even then he'd hope his luck would turn at the zero hour.

Constance, leading Pancho to his new quarters and coaxing him to eat, felt she was in the Bastile; the key had turned, but she has no hope. There simply wasn't any way out.

Dr. Wing's farm lay on the opposite side of Beachport. Reaching town again, Constance remembered she had had no lunch. She didn't feel like dining with either the family or Peter Taylor, but where in Beachport could she go looking as she did? The little waterfront cafe!

It was early. She went through to the last booth and drew the curtains of dull green baize. She had just given her order when she felt the shock of someone sitting down in the opposite booth; a heavy, tired body.

And then she heard voices, and from her weary, defeated pose, sat up alert. Pedro and John Raskthorne were in the next booth.

At the sound of Pedro's voice, Constance found her unruly heart picking up its beat. Pedro, in Beachport. She hadn't known where he was. By mutual agreement, his name hadn't been mentioned to her at the Taylors'.

And now he was here in the booth next to her; only a thin sheet of laminated wood between them. But he was with John Raskthorne.

"All right, Raskthorne," Pedro's voice was incisive "Why do you want the ranch to fail?"

John laughed easily. "It isn't the ranch I want to fail, Taylor. But, man to man, would you want to marry a girl who was more interested in the percentages of butter fat in milk than she was in you?"

"I wouldn't marry a girl who loved land better than me," snapped Pedro.

"I waited for Canslance for six years," Raskthorne went on. "At first I thought it was the ranch that lay between us; a psychological rival, something she couldn't understand. And then quite by accident, she let me know she looked upon the ranch as a means of keeping her family in funds so they wouldn't be dependent upon the man she married; namely, myself

"That's why I backed her; gave her a chance to put it over

"Of course," he admitted, laughing, "I'd made a pretty thorough investigation of it before I turned the money over. I'm not in the habit of backing the losing horse."

"I see."

Constance wondered exactly what Pedro saw that made his voice so crisp, so ...so contemptuous? She wondered that she could sit there listening, when she felt as she felt, or was it that the day had given her so many shocks she was numb?

"You found," Pedro went on, "that Miss Cabrillo's interest in success had passed the point of providing for her family, and that if she succeeded you would never be able to separate her from the ranch."

"Something like that," John conceded. "I felt if I could get her away, knowing she couldn't run the place herself, she'd be a little less . independent"

"And so," suggested Pedro, "you stirred up an insurection among the loyal Cabrillo employes; the men who were steeped in Cabrillo tradition; children who liked to lay in the sun and let the Cabrillos provide their food and shelter and occasional wine"

John Raskthorne's answer came in a voice like a sliver of ice "I have done nothing of the kind."

"Didn't you," pursued Pedro, "when you knew the intense feeling over the discharge of the first employes, say in the presence of Juliano that the loss of that hay would cripple Miss Cabrillo? Didn't you say it was lucky there were no electric storms here to set fire to it?

"And haven't you right along suggested everything that has happened, even to telling, last Sunday, about a ranch that was forced to close down because tuberculosis cows were found among the herds?"

"You have an excellent imagination, Mr. Taylor. Are you sure that you were not the one to make these suggestions"

"Quite sure," retorted Pedro, "because I have the word of someone present on each occasion, that you spoke as I said."

Constance clung to the edge of the bench. John had wanted her to lose John who had first protected his investment so that he couldn't lose. And he wanted her to marry him, expected her to.

"I didn't know you had been seeing Miss Donna right along," offered Raskthorne genially. "Midnight rendezvous?"

Constance didn't hear Pedro's reply because because she knew, suddenly, that Donna had been seeing Pedro; Donna, excited, mysterious, had been slipping out of the house at night. And that was that.

"Personalities will not help us," Pedro was saying, "suppose we stick to business. You want to rid Miss Cabrillo of the ranch, and I want to buy in

"Can we compromise?"

SAFETY SUGGESTIONS

Editor of The Star I have read a lot about our new parking meters and of the new way of parking, and know that if you don't put in your jitney they will give you one of those pretty new tickets that tell you just how and where to pay your fine I will agree that is just the way to do it, but why not go a bit farther and train some of these crackpot drivers what those two lanes are for and how to use them? I guess they think they are for bicycles, or for the driver to keep his car in line by running straddle of it

It is unsafe to exercise your right to travel in either zone, fast or slow zones, due to the driver that shifts back and forth from one zone to the other, and that fellow who parks in the slow zone and that fellow who turns out of it without any respect to the driver who is staying in the through zone, causing him to make a sudden stop which may cause an accident with the other car behind him.

Nothing has ever been said by our safety department in your paper, as to just how the driver is to use them I bet they would not do it in other cities If it was done they would get some other kind of a ticket than one for failing to put in a jitney.

And that driver who knows all about hand signals, the one who gives the left turn signal and then turns right or the right hand signal and turns left, and the fellow who thinks he has the only automobile on the street and gives no signal at all

I believe if we would take one of those patrol cars we got and just scout around and run that fellow to the curb and give him a warning we would avoid a lot of smack-ups Also that fellow who pulls away from the curb without looking back. I wager to say if we had a jay-driver ticket for these driving offenses we would collect more than the meters until the driver learned his rights on the street and would save some fenders and perhaps a life or an injury. I believe if we are not going to enforce the right of a driver in the two lane system let's get a scrub brush and clean them up and let the driver take his chances.

Another act of the crackpot driver is to wait at the red light and when it goes green to make a turn directly in front of you, causing you to slam on the brakes and Listen for the fellow in back of you to give that sound you hear so often, caused by the crackpot driver, (bang) and there goes your rear fenders, while the offender goes safely on his way.

In this day of speed we must try it with safety. We should at least remember we would not like to come home and find one of our own laying there with a torn and wrecked body, caused by a driver who did the same thing you have done a thousand times but got away with it. No one is in such a big hurry that he cannot protect the lives of others. If he is and can't use judgment, let him get some one with judgment to drive his car for him, and if he can't afford this, then be a man—sell that death dealing machine and admit it has more brains than you have

Let's all get together and enact a law that makes every driver take out insurance on the other fellow at least. Make it a law to get this insurance with your plates and drivers license, or no driving As it is, 60 per cent just say, "Well I have nothing, what can you do about it." You are just food for a lawyer, and who has the best one wins. I believe some states have this, so why not Ohio? It would pave the way so much better for safe and sane driving And if a man insisted on being careless then the insurance company would discontinue his insurance and he would be off our highways and streets We owe it to ourselves. I would like to hear comments.

The Two Most Envied Men

CECIL WETZEL and Ellis Woods are the two most envied men in the United States. It was their privilege—a rare one—to manhandle a kidnaper. When they were through, Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich, who revived the nation's almost forgotten fears of kidnaping by seizing three-year-old Marc de Tristan Jr., was alive. His case hereafter will be handled according to law. But if his condition has been described accurately in dispatches, he never will forget the wrath of the two men who suspected him and, when their suspicions were confirmed by his actions, took him into custody—firmly.

They did what every parent and every normal person has longed to do to a kidnaper at some time or other. They gave him what he had coming, leaving the law to decide whether he should be disposed of officially by imprisonment or death. If fear of punishment realy does have a deterrent effect on would-be criminals, including kidnapers, Mr. Wetzel and Mr. Woods can go back to lumberjacking knowing they have contributed something to law and order in their time.

Forces Strengthened

METHODIST women are replacing several separate organizations with one known as the Woman's Society of Christian Service, a title which clearly embraces all phases of Christian activity. The final steps in the merger are under way in Marion in line with a movement throughout all of Methodism and when the organization is complete, eight million women will be enrolled, according to estimates of church authorities.

This is no mere incident in the record of the great Methodist church. It is an important historical development and one of unusual significance. From this union of forces is certain to come greater and more effective accomplishment beginning at a time when the need for strengthening all agencies for good is more imperative than at any time in many years.

This is not to be taken as an intimation that the separate Methodist women's groups of the past have lacked effectiveness. The record would decisively disprove any such suggestion. Without the contribution made by women in the Aid societies, Missionary societies and their various subdivisions Methodism could not possibly have performed its vast service to humanity nor could it have grown to the dimensions which make it one of the world's outstanding religious institutions. In fact the same statement may be well and truthfully made in regard to all religious organizations, for none would be attaining an adequate measure of size and power without the influence and activity of women.

But no matter how earnest and enthusiastic those aligned with any cause may be—whether men or women—they can reach the ultimate in results of spirit and labor only through the best possible system of organization. Experience has shown that such system is almost invariably found in a unification of forces such as that set up in the program of the new Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Forestalling a Nasty Remark

ALMOST forgotten now, along with dozens of other bits of information and speculation which have boiled to the surface of chaos, then disappeared, is the theory that Hitler waited till 1940 for his adventure because it was election year in the United States. He supposedly figured we would be too busy electioneering to pay attention to anything else.

It always was an interesting theory, but more so now in the light of what is happening. Rival candidates are of one mind about two things: Need for intensive preparedness, and need for placating the voters who are afraid the growing army might be used to help settle the European war by some kind of expeditionary action. Effect of the candidates' agreement on these points will be to make the United States perhaps the strongest military power on earth before 1944, with the chief executive, no matter who's elected, pledged to keep the power from being used directly in settlement of the war in Europe.

The anomaly in this situation is more apparent than real. There is less contradiction than there seems to be, for the simple reason that the vast majority of Americans earnestly believe their country has much to lose by becoming embroiled in European warfare, while at the same time believing it has much to gain if the prestige of representative government abroad is upheld against authoritarianism. They are determined to arm themselves against the eventuality of defeat for the nation which shares many of their principles, but they are fully aware that in the conflict between Great Britain and the axis there is more concerned than a conflict of ideologies and systems. There are territorial and trade questions which have hung fire for generations and probably won't be settled within the lifetime of any person now living.

In view of the probability that one of these days there will be a sneering laugh from Berlin to the effect that Hitler knew the United States couldn't do anything in 1940, it may as well be pointed out ahead of time that the United States is doing exactly what it wanted to do. It is making itself strong enough to be safe and is not becoming involved in foreign wars.

News Behind the News

Auto Workers' Desertion Believed To Have Cost Lewis Much Bargaining Strength.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—The mystifying political gyrations of Uncle John Lewis may be made understandable by a run-in interview he recently had with a delegation from the United Auto Workers. They met the most expansive bristling eyebrows in the world from across his desk as soon as they entered.

Paul Mallon

"Why did you guys run out on me?" Lewis asked—a question which he subsequently also must have put to the right wing of the New York State C.I.O. convention at Rochester. The U. A. W.'s answered they were for Roosevelt for a third term.

"Yes, but—," shrieked the shrewd C.I.O. boss, "don't you think I know anything about bargaining? We could have driven a hard bargain with both sides, but you guys ran out on me and now we may not get anything."

Lewis is accustomed, like most politicians, to getting something for his support. He got the labor board law itself from nearly a half million in advances to the Democratic national committee for the second term. Well does he know it is not the custom of the White House or any wise political master, to pay for something he already has.

Balking Trouble

It just looks like no one will play goat for Mr. Roosevelt in his dilemma over the Madden vacancy on the labor board. An excellent Bible was chosen, Boardman Edwin Smith. But as labor board men will, he balked.

If Smith would resign (his term has a year to run) Mr. Roosevelt could reappoint the expired-chairman Madden and then soften that bad news for the A. F. L. with an A. F. L. man in Smith's shoes. Smith rates with the A.F.L. about as high as Hitler. His elimination would be all the A.F.L. would ask for dropping its attacks on the labor board, and being nice and Democratic for the third term.

Apparently Smith could not see the broader aspects of the situation. He takes his advice generally from John Lewis and Lee Pressman of C.I.O. who consider him a superior board man, far superior to anyone the A.F.L. could name.

Britain Beats Blitz

Churchill has definitely thwarted the blitz, the inside administration crowd has been told by Gen. Strong, head of our war plans division, who has been on the ground and should have as good an opinion as anyone.

Hitler has been prevented from gaining mastery of the air and without it he cannot conquer Britain. He probably will continue spite raids to devastate London, but for victory, he will have to look elsewhere.

In view of this cheering news, the administration is now counting on a long war.

Nazi Prospects

Hitler has several obvious prospects. He could shift a thousand planes or so down to help Mussolini to make a real war out of the desert drama he is enacting against the Suez. Or he could lend Spain enough to take Gibraltar and Morocco.

But the French are regaining their heart at Vichy and if he makes a move toward their African holdings, they may give him a little more war. French sources have advised this government privately that they have 300,000 troops in French Africa and 150,000 more in Syria, probably better trained troops for that peculiar style of desert fighting than anyone else can put into an African fray.

Withdrawal of the Vichy government to the protection of those troops is not unlikely if Hitler tries to cover his defeat in Britain with a bigger mistake in Africa.

Reward

One of the punishments suffered by un-American Investigating Chairman Martin Dies for his independence of New Dealers (when the pursuit of Communists was considered anti-New Deal activity) was his inability to get near the New Deal pie counter.

The defense program gave Dies a dam for Rayburn, etc.—but Dies' home town has received $120,000,000 of destroyer building contracts under the defense program.

Questions Raised About Prudence of Willkie's Foreign Policy for Far East.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

AT SAN FRANCISCO on the shores of the Pacific ocean Mr. Willkie expanded his foreign policy. In addition to reiterating his conviction that Great Britain is "our first line of defense and our only remaining friend" he took the position that in the Pacific "our best ends will be served by a free, strong and democratically progressive China." He is, therefore, in favor of sending more aid to Great Britain up "to the limits of prudence and effectiveness," and he believes we should give economic assistance to China and that we should "explore the acquisition and development of Pacific air bases for the protection of our interests in that ocean." His policy, in other words, is to support the British resistance to the Axis in Europe and the Chinese resistance to Japan in the far East.

The interesting thing about this statement is that though such a two-ocean policy is undoubtedly in the making, the administration has been moving cautiously on a line where Mr. Willkie is willing to move so boldly. There is no doubt that the President and Secretary Hull have always felt, as Mr. Willkie feels, that the resistance of China is the best check upon the menacing expansion of Japanese power in the Pacific. But since the outbreak of the European war they have avoided such a direct frontal challenge to the vital interests of Japan as Mr. Willkie advocated in his San Francisco speech. Whether they have been wisely prudent or unwisely timid in avoiding such a conflict with the vital interests of Japan is a debatable question. But the fact remains that on this intensely critical matter they have acted more cautiously than Mr. Willkie thinks the United States ought to act.

Japan Stakes All

It is necessary to bear in mind that Japan has staked everything on the effort to subjugate China and that a policy of giving "economic aid" to China, that is to say materials of war, is a direct challenge to Japan. In order to make it possible for economic assistance to reach the Chinese, the remaining highways into free China have to be kept open. These highways pass through French territory in Indo-China and through British territory in Burma. In order to cut off economic assistance to China, Japan is threatening to invade French Indo-China and has committed such hostile acts against Great Britain that, temporarily at least, the British have closed the Burma road.

It is evident that if China is to be supported with economic aid from the United States, the British and if possible, the French must at the risk of war with Japan open the roads into China. In view of the fact that the British fleet is so seriously engaged in northern Europe and in the Mediterranean, the question of helping China is, therefore, a question of finding ways to reinforce the British navy. For without reinforcement in Europe the British navy cannot afford to risk opening another battle-front in the Pacific. And without adequate assurance that the British navy can continue to control the Atlantic Ocean, the United States cannot afford to risk being involved in a war with Japan in the Pacific.

Playing for Time

As long as the country and congress were not prepared to give assistance to the British in maintaining their sea power, it would have been a piece of incredible folly to challenge Japan in the Pacific at a time when the destruction or surrender of the British navy might mean that our own navy was all that remained to defend the Western Hemisphere. Something has now been done to strengthen the British resistance and to improve our own possibilities of defense in this hemisphere. But the outcome is still very uncertain, and until it is much clearer that we can and that we will effectively reinforce the British resistance, we cannot prudently, so it seems to me, assume the tremendous risks of the Far Eastern policy that Mr. Willkie advocates. We are compelled to continue the administration policy of playing for time until, and unless, an arrangement can be devised which makes secure British and American naval supremacy in the Atlantic and in the southwestern Pacific.

It may be that Mr. Willkie had some such arrangement in mind when he spoke of "exploring the acquisition and development of Pacific air bases." We already have undeveloped bases in Alaska, in Guam, and in the Philippines; apart from a few unpromising sites on islands off the coast of Central and South America the only new bases we could acquire in the Pacific would be British and Dutch bases. The acquisition of these bases would involve important and far-reaching naval agreements for the defense of both oceans.

Such arrangements are probably feasible. But before they could be consummated, it would be desirable to know more explicitly just where, as leader of the Republican party, Mr. Willkie stands.

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss.—Experimenting in 1937, Farmer Abner Hill planted a tiny packet of a new type of seed someone gave him. Four huge stalks of cotton, one with 125 bolls, came up. He picked four pounds from the stalks and saved the seed, Hill reported.

By this year, Hill had saved enough seed to plant 16 acres. The young cotton is already six feet tall and covered with blooms. The average mature stalk stands about three feet high and has 10 bolls.

They Did It to the Doughnut and Now They're Undermining Hot Dogs, Our National Dish.

By DAMON RUNYON

MARY WARWICK, the cuisine (that means cooking) expert of the New York Journal-American, filled her whole column the other day with recipes for serving hot dogs in new disguises. We have the column right here. One recipe speaks of a hot dog roast with "delicious prune stuff and garnished with whole prunes or sliced apples."

There is one for making a salad of the hot dog by combining it with cabbage, green peppers, carrots and apples, and still another that would turn the dog into supper croquettes by covering it with mashed potatoes and dipping it in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg, then frying it in deep fat.

Damon Runyon

A few weeks ago we would have been thrown into one of our terrible rages by the suggestion of vandalism of this nature. We would have gone down to the Journal-American office and heaved rocks through the windows by way of protest against the proposed desecration of a revered American institution. Readers of this column are well aware we used to be set on a hair trigger when it comes to defense of the vested rights of the people, which certainly include the hot dog.

But here lately we find we are losing our capacity for indignation. We have fallen into a what's-the-use frame of mind. We know that to mention stuffing a hot dog with prunes is sacrilege and that garnishment of the dog with sliced apples would be as inappropriate as a platinum-blonde toupee on Jim Farley.

But we have recently become convinced that the culinary leftists are in control in this country and are going to destroy our most hallowed traditions. There is nothing we can do about it.

WE believe this defeatist complex first overtook us on a Tuesday night on Broadway when we passed a show window loaded chock-a-block with doughnuts in sizes and shapes that made them unrecognizable to an old experienced doughnut man like us. Some of them were square, some rectangular, some oblong. Many were covered with frosting of various colors and nuts.

Yes, neighbor, with nuts. Nuts on doughnuts, mark you. And some of these doughnuts were made without holes. It was on noting this that our once vigorous spirit of militant protest fell to where you see it now. From that moment we have felt that any attempt to stem the downward course of this generation is wasted effort. That is why the windows of the Journal-American office are safe.

Of course we do not believe doughnuts without holes are constitutional. In fact, we do not believe that doughnuts without holes are doughnuts. They may be made of regulation doughnut batter and cooked the way you cook doughnuts, but it is our opinion doughnuts without holes are spurious. Calling them doughnuts is an infringement upon a hallowed name. How can doughnuts without holes possibly be doughnuts? Why, that lacks even common sense.

BECAUSE we do not believe doughnuts without holes are doughnuts, we can pass up any discussion of the legal phases of the frosting and other decorations.

As to that, and as to stuffing the hot dog with prunes, we feel we can leave the originators to the sure retribution of Judgment day. Also the person, male or female, who first put glue in apple pie.

It must be perfectly obvious that doughnuts without holes defeat the purpose of the doughnut. The purpose of the doughnut is dunking. The hole is for you to hook your finger in to hold the doughnut while dunking it. You could not get a firm grip on a square or other offshape doughnut. Besides the absence of the hole in the square doughnut would tend to destroy the romance of dunking.

There used to be a Broadway fellow around Lindy's restaurant in the old days who complained that the mouths of the coffee cups were not wide enough for the dunking of more than a quarter of a regulation doughnut. He liked to dunk big. One day he came in with a long doughnut of his own invention. It was shaped like a candy bar. It dunked fine but he had omitted the hole. While this caused great consternation at the time, it resulted in innovation.

Lindy installed cups so wide mouthed you can drop a whole doughnut in one all at once and circulate it around in the coffee by placing the index finger in the hole and giving it a rotary motion.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Ohio might have honored "Lighthorse" Harry Lee as the conqueror of the Northwest Territory instead of Gen. "Mad Anthony" Wayne had President Washington made his selection of generals to fight Ohio Indians without regard for military rank.

General Wayne, however, held a higher commission and was the choice. Lee, who captained a Virginia cavalry company in the Revolution at 20, was a favorite of Washington, partly because of Lee's military brilliance. Lee's mother, Lucy Grymes, it was reported, was a boyhood love of the president.

One of the Revolution's brilliant feats was engineered by Lee when his men captured 160 British at Paulus Hook, near New York City, with virtually no loss. Military strategists compare it with General Wayne's victory at Stony Point.

After the Revolution Lee returned home in 1782 to marry a cousin, Matilda Lee, heiress of a Virginia fortune.

Germans Use Soybean Flour

Soybean flour is being used in substantial quantities for feeding the military forces in Germany, according to a report recently published in Berlin. No figures were given showing to what extent soybeans were being consumed, but the report is of particular interest, as indicating the foods that soybean flour is replacing. The new method of utilizing soybeans, which has been the subject of much experimentation in Germany, is considered of utmost importance in an effort to use soybeans more economically.

German scientists have devised a method of milling and extracting the bitter substance from the beans that produces a yellow flour containing about 40 per cent protein, 20 per cent fat, 27 per cent carbohydrates, 5 per cent ash, and 8 per cent water. The Germans call this flour "full soya" or "pure soya."—From bulletin of National Farm Chemurgic Council.

—Both Sides—

Why I'll Vote for—

Wendell L. Willkie.

By JOSEPH W. MARTIN JR.

Chairman Republican National Committee and Republican leader in house of representatives.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—The forthcoming election transcends in importance any issue of purely partisan politics.

It represents a struggle to determine the future course of the nation for possibly generations to come, economic, social and political.

The paramount issue Americans are called upon to decide is whether we shall continue to preserve the individual liberties and the free institutions guaranteed to us under the Constitution, or whether we shall depart yet further from the American principles of self-government along the road of foreign concepts of rule by dictatorship.

The present administration remains steadfast in its adherence to bureaucratic and socialistic trends in spite of its seven years of failure. Through the New Deal system of uncurbed spending and borrowing we have reached an all-time high debt of staggering proportions and continue to face annual deficits of billions, even without having entered upon the thus far abortive effort to accomplish an adequate national defense.

THERE is, further, the issue of departure from the wise precedent and tradition against any individual serving a third term in the presidency, a tradition upheld by all of our Presidents from Wasington down, and which it is now sought to flaunt.

If this effort be successful, it is fraught with the gravest dangers even to the possibility of a life tenture for the chief executive.

What would become of our democracy under such circumstances and under the influence of present world trends, it is not difficult to foresee.

It is for these, among many other reasons, that I shall support Wendell Willkie and Senator Charles L. McNary for president and vice president of the United States and not merely because of the circumstances that I am a Republican.

It is for these same reasons that millions of former Democrats will support Wendell Willkie for the presidency and will have no part in the third term effort to establish the fiction of the indispensable man or to uphold other fallacies of the New Deal.

I AM and always have been a Republican, but were the situation reversed I should feel and act as do these Democrats, who are putting country above partisanship and patriotism above false hero worship.

We need a businessman in the White House, not only to solve our grave economic problems, brought about by seven years of waste and extravagance, but to insure that adequate defense which all Americans, regardless of party, demand and which alone will serve to safeguard the nation's peace and security.

Wendell Willkie can bring about a coordination of effort on the part of government, business and industry that will insure the marshalling of all our forces toward this end.

He will, furthermore, by the restoration of business confidence, insure the revival and pepetuation of free enterprise and individual initiative which have made this nation industrially great and prosperous and which step alone can bring about the re-employment of both labor and capital.

WE SHALL be assured of an administration responsible to the people, one in which the three branches of government, legislative, judicial and executive, shall each perform the functions allotted to it under the Constitution and in which the executive will not seek to usurp the prerogatives of the other co-equal branches.

With Wendell Willkie in the White House the nation will once more be united in spirit and in purpose to carry out the destiny of a free people.

3 Farms in County To Adopt Improved CCC Soil Methods

Camp Harding Helping Owners Develop Practices To Save Land and Prevent Erosion.

Typical of contour cultivation, a soil conservation practice which is being adopted by three farmers in the county as the CCC camp's program gets under way, is the picture above.

Announcement that three Marion county farm owners are laying plans to adopt improved methods of soil conservation, representing one of the first steps of the conservation program at Marion's new CCC camp, was made today by J. L. Dougherty, camp conservationist.

The three who have already agreed to carry on carefully and scientifically designed programs are Frank G. Montgomery of Montgomery township, Prosecuting Attorney Paul D. Michel of Marion whose farm is in Prospect township, and John E. Ruth of Richland township.

Mr. Dougherty reported that demonstrations of soil improvement and erosion control practices are now in preparation for a number of other Marion county farms, although particular emphasis is placed on soil conservation on farms in watersheds around drainage ditches.

Assistance Offered

Any farmer in the county who is interested in adopting erosion control practices can receive technical assistance by contacting H. W. Schaffner, superintendent of CCC Camp Harding, or Mr. Dougherty.

CCC foremen, under the direction of Mr. Schaffner, will assist farmers in making it easier to rearrange farms for conservation of the soil.

On the Montgomery farms, three different units totaling 264 acres, will be the first farms on which demonstrational measures for conservation of soil have been planned. One field, formerly cropped, will be retired to permanent pasture. On the home farm, a fence running north and south between two fields will be removed and placed east and west, which will permit farming across the slope on the contour, thus reducing soil losses.

In another field the crop rotation will be lengthened from "row crop, small grain, meadow" to "row crop, small grain, meadow, meadow."

Effect of Rotation Change

"The longer rotation," Mr. Dougherty commented, "will improve the physical condition of the soil and prevent erosion losses. It will increase the water holding capacity through addition of more humus to the soil."

The rotation will further improve underground drainage by making the soil more porous and open, Mr. Dougherty said. The additional year of meadow will build up the soil to such an extent that larger corn yields should result when the field is put back into corn, he said.

Mr. Montgomery, owner of the farms, has long been interested in conservation, now serving on the county agricultural conservation committee which administers the federal farm program.

The Michel farm, a 103-acre tract near Prospect along the frequently flooded Scioto river, has suffered seriously from erosion in past years, Mr. Dougherty said, estimating that in various fields from 25 to 50 per cent of the top soil has been washed away.

Michel Farm Changes

A rather steep slope in one field, which has lost about 30 per cent of its top soil, will be retired from cropland and made into permanent pasture. The other half of the field, not quite so steep, will be converted into an alfalfa meadow. Crop fields will be rearranged into longer rows which will be cultivated on the contour of the land.

Slopes on these fields are not more than one to two feet rise per 100 feet, but still erosion has been quite severe, Mr. Dougherty pointed out.

The third farm placed under cooperative agreement with the soil conservation service is the Ruth tract of 133 acres south of Claridon. There a four-acre soil conserving wooded area, which was formerly pastured, will be fenced and protected from livestock.

Protects Seedlings

"This will permit the young seedlings, which would otherwise have been killed by stock, to grow," Mr. Dougherty reported. "When the large trees are removed for timber, another crop of trees will be coming on to replace them."

The crop rotation plan, formerly three years long, will now be lengthened to four years.

Importance of farm woodlots is stressed by soil conservationists. The two scenes above show the bad and good practices. The top picture demonstrates what not to do—let cattle graze in woodlots, preventing reproduction without the animals getting much forage. The woodland below is fenced against grazing and a selective cutting policy is followed. A four-acre wooded tract on the John E. Ruth farm in Richland township will be fenced and protected under a new practice outlined in the accompanying story.

FORMER GALION SCHOOL PRINCIPAL IS STRICKEN

Special to The Star

GALION, Sept. 24—Word has been received here of the sudden death of Everett R. Beets, 44, of Washington, C. H., former principal in the Galion schools. He suffered a heart attack Saturday night, Sept. 14 and died in a furniture store in Hillsboro. Funeral services were held last Monday afternoon at Prospect, Highland county, where interment was also made.

Mr. Beets came to Galion shortly after the World war to become principal at the South school, and later was transferred to the Junior high school building as principal, where he served until 1934.

BRICKER'S BETRAYAL OF THE SCHOOLS

When Martin L. Davey became Governor of this State, hundreds of schools were closed down tight. A financial crisis had overwhelmed the public school system of Ohio, because of the ten-mill limitation that had been passed in 1933, and which took effect in the fall of 1934.

Martin L. Davey

This was one of the many gigantic, new problems that faced Governor Davey, but he did not flinch. He led the fight for the great Public School Foundation Law, under which the school children in all parts of the State are guaranteed equal education.

Under the terms of this law, Ohio provides nearly $50,000,000.00 a year, so that the schools may stay open. This never had been an obligation of the State government, but it was made so under the Davey administration.

When this Foundation School Law was passed, early in 1935, the local school boards had accumulated a deficit in operating expenses of nearly $6,000,000.00.

The State revenues were ample during the balance of 1935 and all of 1936 and 1937. The bad business conditions of 1938 caused a serious shrinkage in all State revenues. The result was an additional deficit of over $5,000,000.00, making a total actual deficit of $11,000,000.00.

Governor Davey left a balance of six and a half million dollars in the public school fund. Governor Bricker robbed the school fund of this six and a half million, and put it into his general revenue fund, thereby boosting the local school deficit to seventeen and a half million. He did it without authority of law, at the time.

His action in robbing the public school fund of this six and a half million dollars, which had been pledged by prior law to the payment of outstanding notes, was one of the most immoral public acts in the history of this commonwealth.

Bricker has betrayed the schools. He robbed the Public School Fund of six and a half million dollars. But he claims to have paid $3,000,000.00 on the School Fund Deficit. He prevaricates. He has paid only slightly over $2,000,000.00. He has taken the other million dollars, and used it for other purposes.

He amended the law to make the local school districts pay their own tuition fees to adjoining districts. This cost the schools $400,000.00.

The Irreducible Debt Fund, which has always been paid back to the local school districts, since Ohio has been a State, Bricker kept from them and held it as State money. He robbed the local school districts of another $258,000.00 by this illegal procedure.

The Davey Foundation School Law still stands as a monument to his administration, but it is being administered badly by the present sanctimonious Governor, who chisels on the schools, just as he does on relief people, and old age pensioners, and those who receive unemployment insurance, and the poorly - paid Highway laborers, and all others.

Bricker had $30,000,000.00 more State revenues in 1939, than Davey did in 1938. And yet he chisels on the poor and helpless people and institutions.

Bricker's false and sanctimonious claims are a hollow mockery, and intellectually dishonest.

Sciatica

The pain of sciatica is over the back of the upper leg, the front of the foreleg and the upper surface of the foot The sciatic nerve itself emerges from the sacrum, runs deep in the sitting region and then down the leg, but a branch—the most painful branch—crosses over around the knee to the front and runs down the leg on the anterior aspect. There are lots of variations from this typical sciatic pain—sometimes it isn't a pain but a dead feeling which is curiously just as annoying as pain This is likely to affect the sole of the foot. Cramping pains in the calf is another variation

In the course of its long journey from hip to foot, the sciatic nerve encounters many "neighbors which may irritate it and produce pain It passes right over the sacroiliac joint and any dislocation or arthritis of this region communicates itself to the nerve Theoretically any focal infection will produce sciatic neuritis, but the great majority of sciatics are what the medical profession call with a great show of apparent learning, "idiopathic," which means in plain language that they are a disease by itself and nobody knows what the cause of it is

Rest, the greatest universal remedy for all things, is not used nearly as much in sciatica as it should be Your sciatic patient will hobble downtown for a treatment, walk to the drug store for a new anodyne arrange some chairs on the porch for himself so he will be comfortable—when all the time if he went to bed and lay down with some support for his leg and stayed there for three or four days he probably would be on the way to recovery If the leg cannot be held still enough with pillows to bolster it a splint-like wooden trough used by orthopedic surgeons for fractured legs may be utilized I know one patient who "treated" for sciatica for a year until finally he got one of these contrivances, which cured him in a week

Another orthopedic device is to put traction on the leg by the use of one of those pulley devices also utilized by orthopedic surgeons for immobilizing broken legs This pulls the nerve taut and keeps bony projections and tendons from rubbing on it and pressing it These resting attitudes may be varied by massage, short wave diathermy and light treatment. Injection of the nerve by a novocain solution is used Novocain usually has a temporary action, but in this condition the relief is prolonged

Edith Manifests Her Joy When Dicky Promises To Carry Her Downstairs

I CAUGHT at my husband's arm as he turned back to the veranda door then flung myself in front of him, grasping his lapels frantically

"Dicky! You must listen to me" I told him "Edith is so near insanity that Miss Whitlock is watching her every second to see that she does not kill herself She has developed an obsession against seeing anyone save the nurse and me—and you Miss Whitlock wants to get her downstairs to my study immediately Will you come up and carry her down It won't take you away five minutes—"

"Two have gone by already" he grimly reminded me.

"The nurse and I would do it ourselves," I went on "but—"

"Don't you dare touch her!" Dicky exploded 'She'd probably try to pull you over the banister Look here! Is she all ready to go? I can't waste any time waiting for lipstick and powder puff"

Heady Thrill

I could not help the heady little thrill which swept me at the realization that he would change his stubborn refusal at the mere thought of my possible danger at Edith's hands But I did not let it delay my answer to him

'She's all ready," I assured him "And we shan't need you the minute we get her inside the study But—do be careful she doesn't pull you over the banister"

He gave a derisive little laugh, checked it as he caught the anxiety in my face and stooping kissed me roughly

'Fat chance of that!" he reassured me as he turned away "I'll just ask old Harry to take over, and then I'll be right up But be sure she's ready"

He was gone upon the word, and I stood watching his lithe figure run down the steps as easily as if he were a boy in his teens wholly forgetting my urgent errand in my love for him

Duty Calls

A faint, quickly stifled, cry from the floor above recalled me to my duty, and galvanized my will—and my muscles—into action Turning from the door, I sped along the corridor and up the stairs, slowing up only as I reached my own door and trying to appear composed for I knew how imperative was the necessity to keep Edith as free from excitement as possible

There was no sound from behind the door, and as I gave a low rap I wondered if I might not have imagined that faint cry

'Come in!' Miss Whitlock called

I opened the door with infinite caution, and as I came into the room, I decided that my ears had not been at fault for I found the nurse standing beside Edith, looking down at her, and evidently keeping her recumbent and quiet by sheer force of will. That cry had been stifled by the nurse's palm, I guessed, but she was not quick enough to stop her patient's outburst when she saw me

Deep Excitement

"Oh! what did he say?" Edith shrilled "Will he come up to carry me downstairs?"

Her face was as agitated as her voice, and her eyes were blazing with excitement

I compelled my voice to matter-of-fact casualness

"He's coming up at once," I said, and at the words Edith gave a fervent little cry of joy

"But he's in a desperate hurry,' I cautioned, and he asks that you be ready"

"Oh! I will! I will!" she promised feverishly, rising from her pillows But the nurse put her back with a firm hand

'She's all ready now," Miss Whitlock said, and then Dicky's firm tread sounded in the hall outside, and he knocked sharply on the door

"It's his step his knock!" Edith said, her face so lighted that again I turned my eyes away with the feeling that I had no right—or wish—to see that naked and unguarded emotion

But she was beyond all caring for appearances

"Hurry! hurry!" she pleaded breathlessly "Open the door! Let him in!"

FRIDAY IS "FLY FREE" DATE FOR PLANTING

Farm Agent Issues Warning Against Hessian Fly.

Marion county's farmers are urged to keep their wheat out of the ground until after Friday, Sept. 27, to avoid Hessian fly infestation, County Agricultural Agent Homer Porteus warned today.

A similiar warning was issued several weeks ago and is being renewed in response to numerous calls concerning the "fly free" date

Mr. Porteus reported infestation of flies is not as heavy as in past year largely because of weather conditions and the later sowing of wheat last year.

Although wheat is the chief crop affected by the fly-free date, farmers should also observe the deadline in rye planting, he said.

The date ranges from Sept 22-23 in northern Ohio to Sept. 27-29 in central Ohio and Oct. 4-5 in southern Ohio.

Washington Says Report Ohio HOLC Headquarters To Close Is Unfounded

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—"Unfounded," replies HOLC to reports that its Ohio office at Columbus will be closed.

General Manager Charles A. Jones of the Home Owners Loan corporation said there had been rumors that the office was nearing the end of its job in the Buckeye state but he declared there still is much work to be done.

"Recent reports," he said in a statement, "that the HOLC state office at Columbus would be closed are unfounded, particularly in view of the fact that there still are more than 75,000 accounts, amounting to a couple of hundred millions of dollars, still outstanding—plus a property management job involving nearly 12,- 000 individual properties."

Jones reported that Ohio HOLC borrowers led those of all other states in total repayments on their debts and in the number of loans paid in full.

They have repaid $89,484,792, or more than 28 per cent of their entire principal indebtedness, said Jones, adding that more than 10,- 000 borrowers have paid in $29,- 405,000 to cross off their loans in full.

"The state's repayment record not only is better than the national average," the manager said, "but far above that of any state of comparable population.

"HOLC now owns 3,069 homes in Ohio Of the homes which are available to yield income, nearly 90 per cent are rented; rental collections in July were 86 7 per cent of billings. HOLC has sold 8,687 houses to home-seekers."

The book value of these houses was $40,550,000, HOLC got $33,- 782,000, and Jones said the difference represented the "cost of leniency" to distressed borrowers.

Jones said that state management deserved credit for its operations, which included the lending of $305,877,993 originally to 98,- 557 borrowers.

"Any comparison results of our activities in Ohio with those in other states shows how well it has been done," said Jones. "The real credit, however, goes to the borrowers. These Ohio people, on an average, were two years delinquent in both principal and interest and in arrears on taxes between two and three years when they were refinanced by HOLC All were utterly without private credit.

"The fact that they have 'come back' in these few years to a point where more than 10,000 have paid off their loans in full, while between 70,000 and 75,000 others are clearly on their way to debt free home ownership, is a tribute to their courage and resourcefulness."

* * *

Wheat loans cleared in Ohio by the Commodity Credit Corporation for the week ended September 18 totaled 2,659,781 valued at $2,157,- 338 The number of loans, said the corporation, was 7848

Ohio ranks sixth among the states in the number of fur animals trapped last year.

There was a reported catch in the Buckeye state of $58,600, which included 338,376 muskrat; 214,200 opossum, and 187,879 common large skunks.

Officials of the fish and wildlife service said, however, the figures probably were far below the real catch since the state requires no report from trappers and gets the figures from licensed fur dealers.

Louisiana led the states with a reported catch of 2,456,000 furs animals.

Frank Ashbrook of the service noted that regulations governing the trapping of fur animals were made by the states and not by the federal government. He said there was need for careful checks on the annual trapping of fur crops.

"In view of the already precarious conditions of many fur species," he said, "trapping must be limited and shorter seasons promulgated to maintain the supply."

Legislation prohibiting interstate sales of prison-made goods is before President Roosevelt, Ohioans, describing the measure as important to many Buckeye manufacturers, said the President was expected to approve it.

Both the house and the senate refused to exempt farm machinery as proposed by Minnesotans.

CANDIDATES SHOOT AT HIGHWAY RECORDS

Bricker and Davey Both Use Same Theme.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24—Each of Ohio's major party gubernatorial nominees sought today to pave the road to reelection with criticism of the other's highway administration.

Former Gov. Davey, Democrat, declared that "another two years of the present administration would mean that our highway system would be almost completely wrecked."

Gov. John Bricker, Republican, replied that during Davey's administration highway costs were excessive and that the highway department was "at its lowest ebb in history" when Davey left office.

Both candidates spoke over statewide radio networks last night, Bricker from Canton and Davey from Columbus.

Bricker charged that the Davey administration paid $4 98 a cubic yard more for "hot mix" road surfacing material than the state now pays and that under Davey Ohio failed to receive $16,000,000 in federal road funds because highway standards were "not acceptable" to the federal government.

The governor also charged that Davey's administration permitted "pre-arrangement among bidders as to who would secure awards of hot mix projects."

Davey countered that criticism about "hot mix" purchases while he was governor were "started, managed and financed" by the "cement trust," which, he asserted, has the present highway department "by the throat."

He said hot mix bituminous material was used extensively during his administration "to save the enormous investment of the old pavements which were badly worn out and too narrow." Replacement of these old roads would have cost $30,000 to $100,000 a mile, he added.

"In the past twenty months, we have suffered from the worst neglect and mismanagement of the great highway system of Ohio than could be measured by any standard," Davey said.

He charged that lack of proper highway maintenance last winter caused more than $10,000,000 damage.

OHIO FUEL GAS CO. WINS SAFETY AWARD

To Receive National Trophy for Third Straight Year.

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co., which serves Marion, has won first place honors for the third consecutive year in the National Safety Council's Public Utility Industrial safety contest, according to word received by Lester Plotner, in charge of the company's safety program in Marion.

The award was made in competition with other gas utilities of the same size throughout the nation.

The Marion office has maintained a perfect record this year, according to company officials. There were no accidents involving men engaged in driving company trucks, laying pipe lines, testing pipe lines, setting appliances or on other jobs.

A bronze trophy symbolic of the award will be presented to representatives of the company at the annual national safety council at Chicago next month.

All competition is based on a frequency rating of the number of loss-time accidents per million hours worked during a period of one year from July 1, 1939 to June 30, 1940. The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. scored the lowest frequency rate in its classification. This represents only 11 loss-time accidents in over six million hours worked.

Student Dances To Follow Home Football Games

A new social order was instituted last week at Harding High school when an after-the-game dance was held in the school gymnasium.

"The boys and girls always go some place after a game and we thought it would be better to invite them to come to their own high school," Principal O. H. P. Snyder said.

About 150 couples attended the dance, paying an admission charge of 10 cents a couple to defray expenses, including the hiring of a music box. The crowd included alumni, a number of students from the Tiffin school the Harding football team played at the stadium prior to the dance, and a group of tenth and eleventh grade students from Thomas A. Edison Junior High school.

About eight members of the Harding faculty were present to chaperone the party.

Throughout the football season there will be after-game dances for all home games at either the high school or at the Y. M. C. A., which is cooperating with the high school. Present plans are to have the dance after the Harding-Ashland game here on Oct. 4 at the high school.

Epworth Blanks Greenwood, 2-0, To Win "Little World Series" Crown

Whitcum Holds Foes to Four Hits as Bob Reid Scores All Runs.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

EPWORTH METHODIST won the city's 1940 softball championship by blanking Greenwood Evangelical, 2-0, in the decisive game of the "Little World Series" at Lincoln park last night. Approximately 250 fans attended.

Coach John H. Clark's victorious outfit chalked up single runs in the fourth and seventh innings. Greenwood threatened often, never seriously, and wound up with a score by innings composed of a neat string of goose eggs.

Maury Whitcum, Methodist speed merchant, gave up four safeties. He struck out seven but lost some of his effectiveness by passing five Greenwood sluggers. His teammates nicked Woody Walters for six bingles and two passes. Six went down swinging.

Both hurlers handcuffed their foes in the early part of the game. Most of the hits came in the later innings when darkness made it almost impossible for the infielders to snag hard tagged grounders. Epworth got four of its six hits in the last two frames, but managed to collect only one run on the barrage.

Reid Gets All Runs

Bob Reid, Epworth third sacker, scored both tallies. He had a perfect evening at the plate, leading off with a double and being passed twice in three trips. His double started the third-stanza fireworks.

He rapped the ball into left center and might have been held to a single if Ingram had played conservatively instead of making a desperate effort for a put out. Bray fanned and Evans, after working the count to three balls, smacked a grounder to the shortstop.

Cook's inability to field the smash let both runners safe and Reid scored on Bill Hero's hard bounder to second. Armbuster scooped up Hero's drive and tossed to Cook for the put out at second. The double-play attempt was wasted when Cook overthrew first. Everly grounded to Marshall at third to close the Epworth uprising.

The single run, scored on one hit and a pair of misplays, was sufficient edge for the title-bound Methodists. They chased over a clincher in the seventh, aided by hits which might have gone for easy outs except that fielders were handicapped by the darkness.

Reid Gets Single

Chuck Reid grounded to the shortstop to start the seventh. Brother Bob worked Walters for a pass and Bray's bounder went through between third and short. Evans lined a single to right but Greenwood's fast relay held Reid at third. Hero's infielder hopper was muffed and everyone was safe with Reid scoring. Epworth's turn at bat ended as Bray was tossed out at home on Everly's grounder to the shortstop and Mautz fanned.

Greenwood's scoring chances were frequent, but they lacked the punch to push their batsmen around and eight were stranded. It was in the second that they coupled a pair of singles but failed to score. Marshall's fly was taken near third by Evans. Anderson tapped the ball into centerfield, being tossed out at second when Armbuster grounded to third. The double-play try was close but Armbruster beat the throw by a step. He advanced on Ingram's looping single over shortstop but the chance faded as Donaugh fanned.

Evans Kills Threat

Quick-thinking on the part of Evans erased another Greenwood chance in the fourth. With two down Anderson duplicated his previous single over second. Armbuster walked and with the count three-two Ingram smashed a drive near second. Evans scooped the ball out of the dirt and raced over second for the third out. Whitcum headed for trouble in the fifth when he walked Donaugh on four straight pitches. He tossed two wide ones to Walters before the later was out on a fly to Everly at first. Maury fanned Roseberry and Cook's grounder to second was an easy out, helping the Methodists out of a tight spot.

Epworth supplied a sizzling double play in the third frame, another time that fate and smart fielding gave the victors an edge. Walters walked and Roseberry went down swinging. Cook pounded a line drive at short and Evans, after a brilliant catch, rifled the ball to Everly to double Walters off first.

As McCormick Goes, So Go The Reds—And He Goes

(This is another in a series of articles about the Cincinnati Reds, National League champions.)

By JOHN FREY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI.—The Cincinnati Reds have their own Bronx bomber, a good-looking young Bohemian named Frank McCormick.

Frank is the boy who knocks the runs in. Frank is the boy whose fielding around first base makes old-timers speak softly of the days of George Burns and George Sisler. Cincinnati fans think Frank's the league's most valuable player.

They speak of natural ball players, but the breed doesn't grow with tropical abandon. The experts agree, though, that Frank is one by any standards.

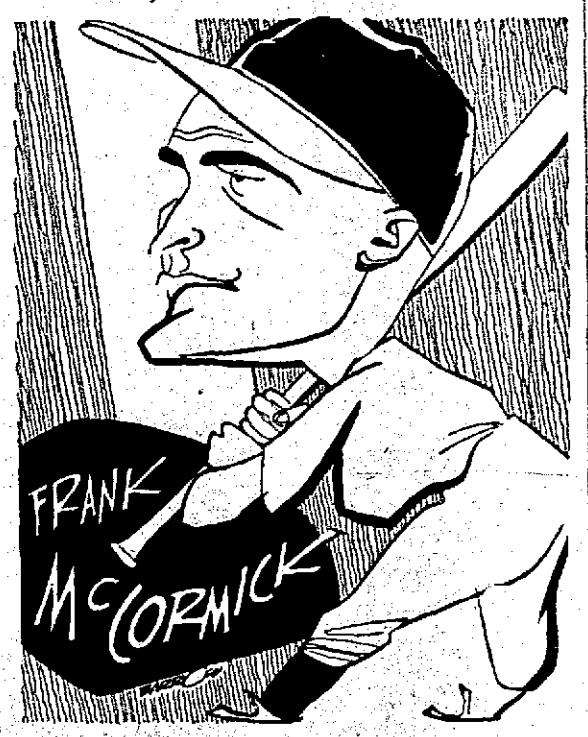
McCORMICK

In the first place, the fellow likes to play ball. Second, he seems to know just what's going to happen and what he should do about it. Third, he can do it. Fourth, he does it.

Scout Bobby Wallace saw that when Frank was with Beckley in the Mid-Atlantic in 1934, and when Bobby sees something, it's there.

That year, Frank's first in professional baseball, he hit .347 in Class C. competition, knocked in 91 runs with 31 doubles, nine triples, and eight homers, and fielded .986.

The Reds brought him up at the end of the season for a dozen games, during which he batted in five runs with five hits and rang up a .313 batting average.



He spent the next three years on a tour of the Red farm clubs and in 1938, the year the Reds jumped from the cellar to fourth place, he came back to the big time.

Monopolizes Job

Since then he's been the regular first baseman and there doesn't seem to be a chance for anyone to snatch the job. He battled in 106 runs in 1938, led the league in such stuff last year with 128, and has been at or near the top all this year. Further, he's been the Reds' only consistent .300 hitter.

Thus, when Frank comes up with one or more on base, figure that anybody, including Frank himself, is in scoring position. He hit 19 homers up to mid-September.

In fact, an old saying (two years old now) around Cincinnati is that as Frank goes, so go the Reds. When he's hitting, they're winning. When he's in a slump, they only win half the time.

Tribe Seeks To Regain Lead in Series with Troublesome Brownies; Chisox Invade Detroit

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The American league, which is trying to find the longest way to the right answer, will get down to business again today with some games that mean nothing and yet mean everything.

Baseball's hottest pennant scramble in years was interrupted yesterday by an open date in the schedule and will meet a similar fate Thursday. In the meantime the Detroit Tigers have two tussles on tap with the Chicago White Sox and the Cleveland Indians meet the St. Louis Browns twice.

No matter how any of these games come out, the championship can't be decided before Detroit and Cleveland resume their fierce fight at Cleveland Friday. But they can make victory and defeat possible in that one game Friday or they can postpone it.

Yanks Fight On

And all the time the struggling New York Yankees will be holding onto that slender mathematical life line hoping for a chance to squeeze through with at least a tie. They have eight games left to play with Washington and Philadelphia, and had better win them all, or at least seven out of eight, if they want to be around this week-end when the winner is determined.

In the meantime the National league is meandering its meaningless way with lots of good and bad baseball and a polite show of indifference to the antics of the junior circuit.

The champion Cincinnati Reds were overpowered by the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-9 yesterday and the nine-game winning string of Relief Pitcher Joe Beggs was broken. The usually light-hitting Reds made 17 safeties, three more than the Pirates and including a two-run homer by Bill Myers.

Rookie Gets No. 1

Some of the best baseball, on the other hand, came in a doubleheader between the Boston Bees and Phillies. Rookie Johnny Podgajny got his first major league victory 6-2 with six-hit pitching in the first game. Manuel Salvo allowed only nine, two of them home runs by Catcher Ben Warren of the Phils. In the nightcap Tom Earley of the Bees pitched three-hit shutout ball to best Hugh Mulcahy 8-0.

Claude Passeau allowed only four safeties and hit one of four Chicago home runs to lead the Cubs to a 10-0 whitewashing over the St. Louis Cardinals.

A ninth-inning home run by Dolph Camilli gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 3-2 decision over the New York Giants. Tex Carleton got credit for the victory by pitching two-thirds of an inning—and earned it. He stopped a Giant threat in the ninth with an unassisted double play while the bases were loaded, catching a pop fly and racing to first.

Indians Facing Brownie Jinx

By The United Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24—The Indians came resolutely to the anti-climax of their pennant sprint today.

Trailing the first-place Detroit Tigers by one game, the Tribe opened a two-game series with the jinx club from St. Louis—a series that can bolster or bury Cleveland's flag chances.

Mel Harder's assignment to the mound today gave the veteran right-hander an opportunity to overcome the St. Louis hex—something he wasn't able to do in five previous starts. The Browns nominated Elden Auker, winner in four of six games with the Indians.

Seeks Revenge

Harder sought to avenge a hard-luck, 2-to-1 decision he dropped to Vernon Kennedy of the Browns on Labor day.

As Cleveland started the schedule of its last five games, the "if" chorus thundered over these possibilities:

If Cleveland and Detroit split their two-game series with St. Louis and Chicago, respectively, they would enter the final three-game series here with Cleveland still trailing by one game. The Indians then would have to win two out of three for a tie, which would be played off in a single game Monday.

If Cleveland loses two games to St. Louis and Detroit wins both from Chicago. The Indians would have to win all three games with Detroit for a tie.

The Tribe showed little evidence of the strain of the stretch—except perhaps the loss of a few pounds from its collective weight.

Feller Is O. K.

As for those reports about Bobby Feller suffering from a fatigue—

Feller effectively spiked them by chasing balls all over the stadium field in a workout during yesterday's day off. After this perspiring "rest," he stretched out on a rubbing table and wanted to know: "Do I look tired? Do I look underweight?"

Manager Oscar Vitt scoffed at the idea Feller's extra duty in the pennant drive had tired him.

"We're all in a few pounds underweight, this fight being as tight as it is," Vitt commented.

PITCHING OF REDS RATED SUPERIOR TO TIGERS OR INDIANS

National Leaguers, with Walters and Derringer Rested, Conceded Edge on Mound.

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—The Cincinnati Reds, with Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters rested and full of purpose, must be conceded the pitching edge over either the Detroit Tigers or the Cleveland Indians — whichever they tackle in the World Series next week.

Some might like to argue the point, particularly those who regard young Bob Feller of the Indians as the greatest pitcher in the game today. Yet the fact seems fairly obvious to this observer, at least, considering all the factors.

Gayle Talbot

For the first time in many a year, the National league race was decided in time to give its champions a breathing spell. Walters and Derringer, instead of going into the series whipped down as they did a year ago against the Yankees, should be refreshed and at the very peak of their ability.

The Cleveland and Detroit mound staffs, on the other hand, are likely to feel the strain of their tense fight for the flag. With the exception of Feller, they are not youngsters, either. Tommy Bridges of the Tigers, perhaps the club's greatest "money" pitcher, is approaching his 35th birthday, and his snapback is not what it once was.

Cincinnati has won two straight National league pennants on the strength of superb mound work, and little else. The Detroit sluggers have an enormous advantage over the Reds in a sheer test of hitting.

The American league winners can count on facing Derringer in the first game, Walters in the second, Junior Thompson in the third, and then back to Derringer. They are three fine righthanders, two of them 20-game winners. Many a baseball man regards Derringer as the best "clutch" pitcher in the business, preferable even to Feller in a tight spot because of his great experience and near-perfect control. Back of their big three the Reds fall off sharply. But they have the National league's best relief man in Joe Beggs to take up any slack, and a canny veteran in Jim Turner.

Against this array Cleveland offers the phenomenal young Feller, Al Smith and Al Milnar.

The veteran Mel Harder possibly would supplant either Smith or Milnar as a series starter, but Mel still is having difficulty going the route. The Indians have a capable reliefer in Harry Eisenstat.

Detroit, ready to work Tommy Bridges, Lynwood Rowe and Buck Newsom in blazing succession, comes nearer matching Cincinnati's pitching balance than Cleveland does.

Among them, they have won nearly 50 games. The Tigers also have a couple of glittering youngsters in Harold Newhouser and Johnny Gorsica, and a sound relief squad including Al Benton and Dizzy Trout.

After looking over the pitchers, the conclusion is that Cincinnati would stand a better chance against Cleveland than against Detroit.

MacKenzie Tops Montgomery in Two Falls in 17 Minutes

Uses Step-Over Toe Hold (and the Ropes) To Win; Kent Floors Carone.

Gordon MacKenzie, husky heavyweight newcomer to the local mat, was invincible last night. He mauled Bob Montgomery of Hot Springs, Ark., into submission in consecutive falls of their scheduled 90-minute match.

The victor used only 17 minutes to twice-time the Arkansan. He punched his way out of Montgomery's highly touted headlock and flattened his foe with a series of body slams. That ended the first round in a dozen minutes.

The second fall lasted hardly long enough for spectators to get settled in their seats. It went but five minutes ending with MacKenzie winning on a step-over toe hold. The grip was applied with Referee Cleie Kauffman down under watching Montgomery's shoulders, while MacKenzie took advantage of the situation to use the ropes to his own benefit.

As could be expected under the circumstances, Montgomery and riled ringsiders protested at the proceedings, but to no avail. Neither had a legitimate claim to squawk since both earlier had used the strands to gain an advantage or break loose of a tough grip.

Harry Kent, the Portland, Ore., giant, duplicated the proceedings of the main scrap, by measuring off Fred Carone of Italy in the semi-final. He scored straight falls, the first in 15 minutes with a flying tackle and shoulder butt and the second in 12 with his s self-styled "boomerang."

The boomerang is a new ba of the cauliflower industry, wh got its introduction a la Kent l night. First he crosses his op nents legs in something that sembles an Indian deathlo Then, still facing his foe, he fl them up and over to land m first in the canvas.

Tex Riley of Amarillo, Te gave fans a treat by trimming veteran New Yorker, Lefty Pa in the prelim. Tex won wit reverse leg nelson at the end 14 minutes.

NATION PLACES BILLION IN DEFENSE ORDERS

Purchases Run from Planes to Gas Masks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—President Roosevelt announced today that the war department within eight days had placed $1 000,000,000 in orders for vital defense equipment, from airplanes to gas masks.

The contracts were awarded under a $5,000,000,000 defense appropriation act signed by Mr. Roosevelt on Sept. 9. He released a memorandum from Secretary Stimson detailing orders placed under the act as of Sept. 17.

The bulk of the appropriation was earmarked for the navy, which contracted for some 200 warships the day the act was signed.

Mr. Roosevelt will dedicate the national capital's new airport tomorrow and on Thursday lay the corner stone of a register of deeds building. White House officials said he would make addresses of three to five minutes at each event and that radio networks could carry them if they desired. They said the chains had not been asked to do so.

160 Persons To Take Part in Hospital Free Clinic Benefit Saturday.

Plans for sponsoring the annual tag day Saturday and attending the annual state convention at Cincinnati Oct. 9, 10 and 11 were made at a meeting of presidents of the Parent-Teacher units yesterday at the library.

Approximately 160 workers will take part in the tag day, each president providing a team of 10. Plans for tag day are in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. W. E. Orcutt, council president, Mrs. Eugene Sonday, Mrs. Damon Spicer, Mrs. Lester Alexander, Mrs. E. G. Leffler, Mrs. Don Newell.

Proceeds of tag day will be used to pay the P. T. A. units' share in financing the free dispensary at the City hospital, sponsored jointly by the P.-T. A. GENERAL MOTORS HEAD FOR WILLKIE'S ELECTION

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, declared today the election of Wendell L. Willkie as president "is bound to bring about a new note of confidence" in the national economy.

Declaring himself in favor of the Republican candidate's election, Sloan said in a general press interview that "when the time comes for liquidating the national defense program, with Wendell Willkie as president, you will have coming into the economy more confidence in private enterprise," he added.

"The defense program will be a minus when liquidated. Willkie will be a plus which will offset the minus to a great extent.

"If Mr. Roosevelt is elected there will be a minus and you will have two minuses—and a lack of confidence."

second alley south of Church street.

Fund Transferred

After covering this wide range of traffic problems, council went to its chambers for the regular meeting. First they passed an ordinance transferring $350 from police payroll to gas and oil to provide funds for operating police cars the rest of the year.

A petition from 16 residents of LaTourette street was read, asking the city to please finish repairing their street. Council President Robert H. Suef referred the request to the street and alley committee for investigation and an early report.

Council members on the policemen's and firemen's pension boards were chosen for year terms, beginning at once. On the firemen's board are Harry Cahill and W. Basil Williams and on the police board are Earle Johnson and Harry Wilhelm. The councilmen on the boards will soon choose a citizen member for each board.

The firemen and policemen have already elected their board members.

Another part of the police committee report on traffic was read. It recommended that the signs near the police station on Orchard street be changed from 'Police Cars Only' to 'Official Cars Only' so that any city official can park quickly in an emergency.

It also recommended that a two-hour zone be established on Davids street between Sugar and Columbia streets to relieve congestion there.

Auction Suggested

Councilman Wilhelm reported on an investigation of unclaimed property held by the police department and suggested an auction be held to dispose of it.

He reported there is a cellarful of bicycles, tires, stills, slot machines and what have you.

Mr. Wilhelm also reported that a non-parking zone should be set up on Prospect street the entire width of the school administration building to give children a clear view of traffic when crossing the street.

Some councilmen thought such an ordinance was already in effect, but that the street had not been properly marked.

Councilman Biggert reported a suggestion made to him that High, Vine and Baker streets between Center and Church streets be made one-way streets with parking on one side only. This was referred to the police committee.

Councilman Johnson's request for smoothing out of the bumpy Pennsylvania railroad crossing on Bellefontaine avenue was referred to the city solicitor.

Parking Problem

Councilman Primm asked for advice on how persons living on Avondale avenue should park. Parking now is limited to the east side only and in the past some drivers have parked their cars facing the wrong way. Police have warned them to park only on the right hand side but this requires considerable maneuvering since the street is narrow, Mr. Primm said.

Mr. Cass said the police are right and that the proper course would be to draw up legislation permitting parking on the left hand side of the street. The matter was referred to the police committee.

Some Complaints

Manuel Gomez of 340 South Seffner avenue complained that an alley running south from the first east-west alley south of Church street on Seffner is obstructed. He reported a wide variety of trash and rubbish blocking his access to his garage.

He said he had asked aid from several officials but was always referred to the next fellow.

Now a petition is being considered and he asked council if it is possible to have the condition remedied without filing a petition.

His complaint was given to the street and alley committee.

John Fulton of Latourette street also asked that an alley south of Bennett street between Latourette and Flos be cleaned up, and also another alley in the vicinity.

This too was given to the street and alley committee for study.

GARNER STARTS BACK TO CAPITAL TODAY

Vice President Quietly Slips Away from Uvalde.

By The Associated Press

UVALDE, Tex., Sept. 24—Vice President John N. Garner left his Uvalde home for Washington today.

Since the vice president left the nation's capitol after his unsuccessful bid at Chicago for the presidential nomination, there had been political speculation as to whether he was retiring to his Texas homeland.

A maid in the Garner residence said the vice president and Mrs. Garner left town quietly this morning.

Not even Garner's closest friends here knew the vice president was leaving. Uvalde townspeople believed "Cactus Jack" was home to stay.

A few days ago Mrs. Garner, who is his secretary, said he would have returned to Washington long since had there been important need. Then, she said, "there is none."

Mrs. Garner said he was in high spirits and perfect health and was 'doing a lot of thinking."

"I don't know what about," she told an interviewer last week. "He doesn't tell me but it isn't for nothing."

GALION AUXILIARY TO HOLD BENEFIT

Group To Raise Funds for Hospital Nursery.

Special to The Star

GALION, Sept. 24 — Galion's new city hospital will have a nursery that will cost approximately $1 500 which will be furnished entirely by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Good Samaritan hospital board. For many years these women have worked tirelessly to raise funds for various needs at the Good Samaritan hospital, and now they have planned the nursery project for the new city hospital which is rapidly nearing completion.

As one of the means toward raising funds for this project, a benefit party will be sponsored by the women. Mrs. C. J. Griebling at whose home the first meeting of the fall season was held Monday night, has been named chairman of the committee to plan the benefit party. The tentative date has been set for Thursday night, Oct. 3.

The auxiliary held a steak fry at the Griebling home to launch its fall work season. The business session was held around the camp fire, and during the social hours camp fire songs were sung. Mrs. Harvey Hay presided for business.

The committee named to plan the nursery with the cooperation of the hospital superintendent, Miss Weber, include Mrs. J. V. Dye, Mrs. John Kidd and Mrs. Curtis Tracht.

Plans were also made for the annual election day dinner, and Mrs. Lowell Cleland was welcomed as a new member.

ROTARY DISCUSSES GALION BETTERMENT

Civic Improvement Theme of Club Meeting.

Special to The Star

GALION, Sept. 24—"What Is Good and What Is Not Good About Galion," was the subject of a panel discussion started at Monday night's meetings of the Galion Rotary club. Richard Horn was leader.

The discussion dealt mostly with the things not good about Galion and included the following: need of additional housing facilities; need for a good hotel which is now planned by one of Galion's leading citizens; need for coordination among civic groups; the better use of leisure time for children because there are now too many on the streets at nights instead of in their homes; larger degree of cooperation between churches; laxity of parental control and discipline.

Leslie Clippner of Cambridge was introduced by the club president, Dr. O. R. Kackley. A number of years ago he underwent two operations at the Elyria Crippled Children's hospital. For 11 years prior to that time he could get around only by walking with his hands and knees, and following the operations he could walk with his feet by the use of braces. He was sent to the home by the Cambridge Rotary club. Clippner spoke briefly and expressed his gratitude to all Rotary clubs for their work with crippled children.

Visitors present at last night's meeting included Dr. J. C. Snyder and Frank Jones, members of the Cardington Rotary club.
